Pasco County Offers New Tools to Help Olympus Pools Customers

~~County is also waiving associated permit fees through the end of the year~~

PASCO COUNTY, FL ---- Pasco County Building Construction Services is now offering new tools and some financial relief to help Olympus Pools customers whose pool projects are in limbo due to open permits. We've launched a dedicated webpage to help you navigate the permitting process and to answer any questions you might have about this difficult situation. The county is also waiving all fees associated with Olympus Pools permits through December 31, 2021.

“We hope this action will help ease the financial burden on our customers who choose to seek other permitting options,” said Assistant County Administrator Sally Sherman.

Olympus Pools customers have three options for open pool permits:

- Oversee the project yourself
- Hire a new, licensed pool contractor
- Cancel your pool permit

To choose an option, fill out this form and e-mail it to: BCS@MyPasco.net. For answers to the most common questions surrounding this issue, please click here:

Over the past two years, Olympus Pools has pulled hundreds of permits for pool projects in Pasco County, and most remain unfinished. Pasco Building Construction Services is working tirelessly to help customers work through the permitting process.
